Any other comments?

- Awesome workshop! I was looking at needing something more for myself and what to do with children. So useful!!!
- It has changed my teaching since I took the first workshop last winter. I am excited to keep making changes for my student’s benefit and mine.
- There was some repetition from one workshop to another, but you skipped over this so was okay.
- I hope we see you come to our community with all this great information.
- This workshop really helped me, taught me a lot. Things I wondered about, I now have the answers. Now I can leave here and teach parents and students about The Zone. Thank you!
- Less of the Back to Basics! I will email you to let you know some of the changes in my classroom.
- Overall very interesting and thought provoking information. I disagreed with some though e.g. info on ADHD and Autism as I think they are genetic, and I think medication for child depression can be justified in some cases.
- When you look at the research, do you look at meta-studies (study of the studies)?
- When you said that “children seek what they need” at last year’s workshop, it changed how I looked at my class/students. Thank you! I know I am a better teacher because of what I have learned from you!

Would you recommend this workshop to others?

- Yes. I totally agree with this and really believe in this. I want to share this information with parents, teachers and children!
- Definitely! All elementary teachers should have access to this info.
- Yes – very useful information.
- Yes – I liked the amount of time allowed for group discussion. Great ideas learned from you, but other participants as well.
- Yes – because of the importance of development and play, over medication of children, materials that are useful in the home as well as classroom, why TV and video games are not good for children and how it will affect them forever.
- Yes because it would help teachers and parents in other school districts learn what they are doing and why it isn't working to help kids. Real world vs. technology.
- Yes. Very informative.
- I felt day 3 really brought it all together and will really use the classroom and gym plans to change our school set-up.
