What was the most valuable thing you learned in the workshop?

- The safe touch/non-touch methods (for my organization)
- Just reaffirmed my beliefs.
- Wow! How individuals and society have changed in the last decade—and the implications!
- Activity is very necessary.
- Reinforced the importance of play in the development of children.
- I had no idea how important this topic is.
- Fact based information.
- I loved the emphasis on exploration, movement, bonding experiences and nature.
- Understanding the connections between fundamentals and outcomes.
- Children need to be active.
- How important it is to spend time with children.
- Attachment issues are addressed.
- Early intervention raised the importance.
- The detrimental over-use of technology to the critical development factors.
- The amount of time children are watching TV and gaming. The ideas on touching for a classroom.

- Information on how to work with children in my school and with grandchildren.
- That what I believe in child behavior and technology is true.

Was there anything not covered in the workshop that you felt should have been?

- No.
- Pre-natal care me – greater intervention.
